OLD MEN IN INDIA. One day in January, 1857, when 'marching' through northern part of my district, I rode up to a beautiful village within sight of the snow-range of the Himalaya, and situated on high sandy soil. My wife and child were following bebind in the carriage, and were waiting till they overtook me, I entered into conversation with some of the village Mahomedans, who were employed, as I thought, repairing the tomb of some local saint. On asking them, "What holy men lies buried here?" an old, white bearded laborer replied, that the grave was empty, it was a new tomb which they were making for his father. "Your father?" I replied.

 "You are an old man yourself, and your father must have been many years dead buried." "No, he is alive, though very weak," was the answer. "He is 125 years old, and he was anxious that we should cer-monize making his grave, as he feels he not long to live." On my expressing indulgence at any man having arrived at 125 an age, another villager stepped forward and said, "Yes, his father is 125 years old, he is not the oldest man in our village; have another much older man than he." "How old?" "150 years old," said the third villager. "And how old are you?" "I am 100 years old, and able to go about at his time of occupation." "Would you like to see him?" "On replying, "Certainly," a boy was sent to fetch the patriarch, who in a few minutes appeared leaning on the shoulder of a messenger. He was a tall, gaunt man, much bent, and his beard only grizzled, with no look of very extreme old age at all. "On asking him what was his age he said, "I am 160 years old." On expressing my doubts, several old men, snow-white heads, among the villagers, a crowd of whom had by this time assembled came forward, assuring me that it was and that when they were children, they regarded this man even then, as of great age and the patriarch of the village. By the time the carriage had come up, and the lagers begged that the old man might be permitted to take my little child in his arms to bless her. I of course consented, and my placing her in his arms, he very solemnly said, "May your years be more than mine," and returned her to me. I then entered into conversation with this, perh

WONDERS OF LITTLENESS. Pliny
Ælian relate that Myrmecides wrought of ivory a chariot with four wheels and horses, and a ship with all her tackle both in so small a compass, that a bee c hide about with its wings. Nor should doubt this when we find it recorded, on questionable authority, that in the tw eth year of Queen Elizabeth's reign a bl

smith of London, named Mark Soames, made a lock of iron, steel and brass of seven pieces, and a pipe key, all of which weighed one grain. Scallott also made a chain of gold, of forty-three links, each of which he fastened to the lock and key, and put around the neck of a flea, which drew the whole with perfect ease. The chain, lock and key, altogether, weighed but a grain and half.

Hadrianus Junius saw at Mechlin; inabant, a cherry stone cut into the form of a basket; in it were fourteen pairs of dice, each of a separate and number, of which Turricanes, of whose skill so many wonderful things are related, is said to be fabricated from mills, which moved of themselves, so minute in size, that a man could carry one in his sleeve, and yet powerful enough to grind in a single day grain enough for the consumption of eight men.

Republican accounts say that Covode is certainly elected in the 21st district, making a gain of two republican members of Congress in the State.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.

The Attorney General under date of Oct. 8th, in reply to the Secretary of War, on a point of law referred to him for his opinion, concludes as follows:

"I am therefore of the opinion you have no legal authority to exclude authorized attorneys and agents from collecting bounties, and that on great emergency the right of claimants may be by attorneys."

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 10.

The Ledger has received the following important dispatch—

Washington, Oct. 10.

The President has just sent into the Attorney General the following questions and waited a response to them be returned in Washington.

First—Is the present Congress composed of members from Northern States alone such a Congress as the Constitution requires or is it an illegal and unconstitutional assembly?

Second—Would existing circumstances justify the President in sending his next annual message to an illegal and unconstitutional assembly pretending to be the Congress of the United States?

Third—Does that clause in sec. 5th of the 1st article of the Constitution, which makes each House the judge of the election returns and qualifications of its own members, extend to the present Congress?

Fourth—Does the President's oath of office require him to enforce these provisions of the Constitution which give to each State an equal right of representation in Congress viz: article 1st, sec. 2d, sec. 3d, art. 5th, last clause.

Fifth—What steps does the constitution and his oath of office require the President to take in order to secure the assembly of a constitutional Congress.

Upon these replies that may be made by the Attorney General to the above, the President, there is reason to believe, has determined to take his stand.

The questions put to the Attorney General at all the more important when taken in connection with the bold interference of the President at the Fifth Avenue Hotel, declaring that "the present was only an assumed Congress," and "not the Congress of the United States," and in connection with similar declarations that fell from his lips prior to his return to the Capitol.

From these utterances, it is clear that the Executive has fully made up his own mind that Congress was not a legal body. He now asks the opinion of the Attorney General upon the grave and momentous subject and when it is given, he will govern himself accordingly; and it is so difficult to foresee what the response of Mr. Stanton will be, and that he will decline to furnish the opinion of the Executive as already expressed, there seems to be no doubt.

HALIFAX, N. S., Oct. 10.

The Royal Mail Steamer "Admiral" from Liverpool, Sept. 20th, via Queenstown 30th, arrived at this port this afternoon. The ship's company had a special meeting on the 27th. The Directors submitted a report, congratulating shareholders on the success of the cables, and thanking them for their energy and perseverance in the past.

The report also explained that they abandoned the proposition to issue £1,200,000 with the first preferential dividends, as unnecessary, and instead, ask for power to issue the balance of capital and to apply to Parliament for increased powers.

The report was adopted.

Right Hon. James S. Worthy, Chairman, said that he anticipated at a very early moment, a great reduction in the cable tariff, probably one half the present rates.

In 56 days, including Sept. 31, the cable earned £46,048, which would make an average, including Sundays and stoppages of sailing, including the existing tariff, and if they excluded the exceptional days when the cable could not work at all, the average would be £290,000 a year.

These figures are very far from confirming the recommendation of the Board that the cable was earning at the rate of £300,000 a year.

The various cable securities had somewhat declined in price. In addition to a budget of £100,000, the Board had received from the Chamber of Commerce, on the 1st of October, the American Chamber of Commerce in Liverpool had resolved to give a banquet some time in November, and to present gold medals commemorating their achievements, to four of the principal actors, who were of board the Great Eastern during the great war, viz: one to Captain Anderson, one to Mr. Canning, head of the engineering department, and one to Mr. W. P. Wild, and one to the head of the electrical department.

The King and Queen of Denmark were shortly expected on a visit to the Prince and Princess of Wales, in London.

SPAIN.

The Spanish War Department has taken steps for the manufacture of the Prussian needle gun.

GERMANY.

LOCAL AND STATE ITEMS.

Does our neighbor of the Times desire to credit the most interesting of his dispatches simply to the "Associated Press," taking them out of the "Telegraphic columns"? We suppose there was a fair understanding that the regular despatches should be credited to the President's Thanksgiving proclamation and the details of the great Wisconsin fair were however taken out of our telegraphic columns without credit. So far as common local items are concerned, we are willing to exercise a fair reciprocity without credit.

PARALYSIS AT HOME, OR THE YOUNG INVINCIBLES, is the title of a new book for the young people, by the author of "Fred Knapton and the Chain of Circumstances." Published in Boston by Wm. V. Spencer. The story follows a handsome illustrated volume of over 300 pages, well written, of good moral influence, and of the kind of interest in its incidents which authors and delight the youthful mind. It is for sale at the bookstores.

Editor of Daily Whig.

I understand it has been currently reported that I voted the Democratic ticket at the late election. I deem it due to myself to make a public denial of the charge, as it is utterly without foundation, and I am prepared to prove it untrue.

SUMMER LAUGHTON.

The Second Filar Concert by Mr. E. L. Appleton will take place this evening (Thursday) at Concert Hall, and will be seen by advertisement. The first entertainment of the kind, given at Spencer's Hall a few weeks since, gave much gratification to an appreciative audience of cultivated musical taste, and we have no doubt the present occasion will be equally worthy of patronage.

Another sharp frost visited us yesterday morning—but we have a continuance of our pleasant fall days.

We are indebted to the Penobscot River Express for Boston evening papers per steamer Katabid.

A letter was received here last evening from Dexter stating that Charles Rose had stolen, the night previous, twenty dollars from his sister-in-law, a widow, and left, supposed for this city. George L. Brown & Co., Pickering Square, have in their stalls the beef of an ox weighing some 1500 pounds, or the beef which they wish to show our citizens as a specimen of what beef should be.

Capt. Elijah Low has just gathered a load of fruit from his garden on Centre Street, including as delicious grapes and pears as we ever had the fortune to taste.

A formidable quarrel has sprung up between the manufacturers of paper dollars and about patents. Some $100,000 are invested in the business, and the lawyers are smiling at the fair prospect of litigation.

MACHINE SHARON LUMBER. They have a lumber drying establishment in Portland, carried on by a company under a new patent, in which we believe our townsmen have a considerable interest. The company have erected a handsome brick building near the gas works, of sufficient capacity to dry 50,000 feet of lumber per day. The expense of handling and drying thoroughly is we think in the neighborhood of three dollars per thousand. During the process the lumber is subjected to a temperature of 250 degrees, and about a ton of water is driven out of each thousand feet of green boards or timber.

A couple of smart boys of 15 and 16 years, at Madison, dug and hoisted 100 bushels of potatoes in one day recently, as the Clanton says.

The Machine Union says that Mr. Coffin Smith in Northfield, had some time, a few weeks since, farm stock to the amount of $1,800. They were beef cattle, and all sold to one purchaser. At present rates it takes but a few pairs of cattle to produce $1,800.

The Argus of Tuesday, announced the arrival for the agent, Hon. F. M. of Mr. Sherman Star, from Cardenas, and that he had arrived at quarantine. She picked up 7 additional persons who were on board the ill-fated steamer Evening Star. Four persons were lost out of the boat in which the above were picked up.
